

ABSTRACT

The dynamic visualization of search results on a user interface is described. According to one aspect of the invention, a user interface includes a parametric control region and a display region. The parametric control region enables a user to set attributes of information of interest to a party. The display region enables a user to dynamically visualize the likelihood of specific information being of interest to the party.